

Which research subjects are well-funded?

The majority of practicing designers said they rely on their own resources to fund research, though occasionally clients, manufacturers, and the government provide support. These designers also indicated the areas in which they conduct research on a regular basis. Here we project who funds various areas of research in professional design practice.